AND HERE AND

FOREWORD

When our school days shall have passed, and this 1931 Northeast Annual shall have succeeded in keeping alive many pleasant reminiscences of our high school days, the staff will be amply repaid for editing this year book.

DEDICATION

CALLER KERN

To the boys of Northeast High School, who, through their untiring efforts in all scholastic events, have aided in establishing and maintaining the standards of their Alma Mater, we are pleased to dedicate this 1931 NOR'EASTER.

JACH KAREN KERMAN

ACHIEVEMENT

Almost two decades have passed since the first Viking set sail upon the high seas of education. With floating standards held high, a challenge to all other sea-goers, they have weathered all storms and emerged victorious.

NORTHEAST HIGH SCHOOL was granted a charter to the National Honor Society on May 21, 1923. The four purposes of this society are to promote scholarship, leadership, character and service, among the high school students. Only the most outstanding students of the Junior and Senior classes are eligible for this society.

Ten per cent of the present graduating class and five Juniors usually receive this honor.

This year 44 Seniors and 5 Juniors were granted bids to this society. To be a member of this society is the highest honor that can be bestowed on a student.

Special Honors

NORTHEAST HIGH SCHOOL is proud to be able to have a page for the Special Honors bestowed upon her chosen students.

In Oratory: Robert Conklin represented Northeast in the Star's Oratorical Contest. Wallace Nobles was Northeast's speaker on Charity over the radio.

In Music: In an assembly held here, the following pupils were winners of solos: Soprano, Fern Griggs, '32; Mezza Soprano, Meredyth Smith, '31; Alto, Caroline Chaffee, '31; Tenor, Kenneth Atwell, '31; Baritone, Edward Gilispie, '33; Bass, Stanley Tyson, '33. Edward Gilispie also won first place among other contestants of the city.

In Art: Marguerite Daghy won fourth place among other contestants for posters for the R. O. T. C. circus. Herbert Anderson had the honor of winning honorable mention in the National Art Exhibit for 1930. The following people sent in articles for the 1931 National Art Exhibit. Decorative design, Melvin Forrest, Jean Bender, Wilma Elsas, Jean Frantz, Loree Kinyoun, Madalyn Small and Marguerite Walker; portrait in water-color, Marguerite Daghy; small sculpture and decorative panel, Norma Erickson; decorative panel, Margaret Lyons; still life in spray batik, Jaunita Warren; still life in water-color, George Uits; pen and ink sketch. Charles Bleistein; commercial poster, Jack Bowman. These were from the Art classes, while from the Craft classes were block prints, from Caroline Chaffee and Betty Payne; Batik panel on silk, Meredyth Smith and Alice Jewell; Batik silk scarf, Virginia Pittman; a Batik table scarf of silk, Elaine Huff. Northeast, therefore has high hopes for the exhibit this year.

The Spanish Department won the trophy at Columbia for the fourth consecutive year: Rosemary Stahl, first place, Advanced Spanish; Esther Newton, third place, Advanced Spanish; Patty Glenn, fourth place, Elementary Spanish. In Music, Charles Rambo placed first in Trombone Solo and Wilbur Combs placed third in Clarinet Solo. Dorothy Sanders placed fourth in Home Economics.

THE Parent-Teacher Association is the link which connects the student body and the teachers to the home. It is a means of co-operation with the parents, and affords a better understanding of the school's activities. It enables the parents, teachers and others who work with the young folks to establish a better home, school and community, for the students. It helps to create higher ideals, which, by one group cooperating with another, are of a benefit to all. The club helps to surround the young people with the thoughts that will make fine men and women, not law-breakers and criminals, and to instill in their minds forever, the right standards of living.

Alumni

"MEN may come, and men may go, but I go on forever," and thus it may be said about the Alumni of "Thou Dear Northeast." Much enthusiasm was shown on Northeast Night when our preceding fellow students of Northeast returned to the old Alma Mater once again. Old friendships were renewed, and new ones strengthened. The babble of voices, including the ever howling barkers from various societies, horns, delighted shrieks from the fairer sex, and the general other noises were unnoticed by the dancers and merry makers in the gymnasium.

Northeast Night was not observed last year, and the cry for it became so enunciated, that it was finally decided to be continued again this year. Those who attended will not soon forget it, and it is yet hoped that it may be an annual affair, without any interruptions between years.

A total of 310 alumni attended the reunion Northeast Night. Every graduating class being represented with the exception of the classes of 1914, 1916 and 1918. As could be expected, the class of 1930 was most largely represented with 126 members, the class of '29 with 73 was second, and the classes of 1927 and 1928 shared honors for third highest representation with 28 members each.

An alumni program was given in assembly May 1, 1931. The following alumni took part: Henry Fox, Master of Ceremonies—John Monteith, Margaret Minnis Bryan, Helen Sailors Lasley, Marion Blakesly Walker, Harry Cooper, Margaret A. Fifield, Elsie Clausen Vaughn, Karl Koerper, Elsie Frisbie Norman, Gladys Wall Merriman, Harold Richter.

Senior Officers

Robert Conklin, President Charles Bleistein, Vice-President Robert Bruce, Giftorian Athaliene Campbell, Secretary

WE, the Senior Class of 1931, wish to express our appreciation and thanks for all the help and encouragement we have received during the past three years. These have been wonderful years filled with our highest hopes and ambitions, and will remain in our memory as the "days spent at dear Northeast."

We have all striven to uphold the morals and spirit of our school. An everlasting friendship has grown up between us that the years will never dissolve. Working side by side, and on equal basis with each other, this experience has strengthened even the weakest of our characters. We have been given an opportunity to show just what we could do.

We wish to impress upon the lower classmen the honor and rewards there are, if only they are earneds. There remains but this one thought, when you are ready to say farewell: "I hope I have lived up to the high morals and standards of my school." As Milton sang, "Virtue Is Its Own Reward."

New Plan

We, as the first class of this New Plan, have done our best to set a high standard of accomplishment which we hope the classes to follow will equal or surpass.

Helen Smedley. Treasurer Dave Dexter Sergeant-at-Arms Warren Slagle, Reporter Robert V. Harman, Advisor

New though it is, the plan, now in operation in our school, has thus far proved exceedingly successful. The students have adapted themselves readily to this plan, and we believe they will continue to carry it out as successfully as they started it.
New Plan

THIS plan, approved by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, provides for a three-year course. It begins with the junior year of high school and qualifies one for admittance to the junior year of the university. It is thought, that by the elimination of much material now duplicated in high school and college courses, the student completing this three-year course can carry on the work of the last two years of college just as successfully as those who have taken the regular courses.

In addition to preparation for further college work, this plan provides for semi-professional or "terminal" courses for those whose schooling will terminate with the completion of this course.

Special courses are organized for those expecting to take up Secretarial work, Engineering practices or Commercial Art.

English, American History, and Science are required for the first year's work; the fourth subject may be elected. The subjects for succeeding years are largely optional.

Only pupils who have had two semesters of work in the senior high school may qualify for this plan.

Pupils electing this plan are eligible for all activities of the school to the same extent as pupils in the regular courses.

We believe this initial year has been very successful for those pursuing this course and that it will meet with increasing favor.

We, the juniors of today and the seniors of tomorrow have profited by the courage and fearlessness which has been shown by the class of 1931, and as we take the helm of our Viking Ship, we shall endeavor to steer it safely into port throughout the coming year.

Junior Class

OUR Sophomore friends have advanced, and are now advancing toward the leadership of Northeast. We look to them for the leaders of tomorrow, and from the fine showing this year, we are sure we will not be disappointed.

As we Juniors today advance to the senior stage, we realize that there are certain standards we must uphold and we shall endeavor to uphold them, and make them higher so they will always be looked up to by the classes to come.

These Juniors who have so ably filled their position this year are expected in their next year, as Seniors, to continue the splendid works inspired by their predecessors, the Senior classes of former years. Throughout this year they have set a worthy example to their under classmates, the Sophomores, and have upheld splendidly those standards set by their upper class men, the graduating Seniors.

THE annual Prom, given by the Juniors for the members of the Senior class was held on May 15, 1931. Both the Junior and New Plan classes participated. Music was furnished by an excellent orchestra; refreshments consisted of punch and wafers, and an enjoyable evening was spent by all.

THE Girls' High School Club is a friendly. Christian, and sociable organization. Every girl in Northeast High School is eligible to membership in the Girl Reserves. Its members strive to live well rounded, wholesome lives, and be true to the purpose of the club. "To Find and Give the Best." They have as their symbol, a blue triangle, whose sides represent Health, Knowledge and Spirit. Their activities are those which best work out the things to which they aspire.

Each year a Junior member of the club is chosen to be the honor girl, because of her outstanding qualities that speak for the true Girl Reserve. Esther Newton is the Frances Scarritt Handley honor girl for this year.

STAGE CREW

The stage crew was first organized in 1928. The purpose of this group is to aid in any way possible the work re-quired in rendering the plays or the as-sembly programs. At first, the work re-quired only two boys, but in '29 the size of the crew was increased to four. Dan Weiser and Raymond Isham were graduated last year, leaving Ralph Shank and Harry Smille who were ap-pointed manager and electrician. Don-ald Benedict and Mike Juricak were added to the crew for this year. The crew worked together successfully throughout the year. Mr. Pinkney, whose assistance is much appreciated, is the faculty advisor for this group. The stage crew was first organized in the faculty advisor for this group.

The Christmas Play, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," was presented to large audiences on both Friday and Saturday nights, December 12th and 13th, 1930.

The plot concerns the elevating by a stranger, the personification of the Christ. Its setting is from a cheap boarding house with the roughest of tenants, to a refined place where the talents of each are appreciated.

The cast was greatly indebted to Miss Hobbs, whose patient and careful coaching were largely responsible for the success of the play.

Senior Play

THE Treble Clef Club, formed for the purpose of the study and appre-ciation of music, was organized in 1914 under the direction of Mr. Chaffee. When first started it was an outside club, but for the last few years, a regular class period has been the time of meeting.

The club has sung for many occasions during the year, some of which were: Northeast Night, Open House, at the Union Station, singing Handel's Hallelujah Chorus with the Boys' Glee Club, and for the Girl Reserve Christmas play. Also, the club sang at Melrose Methodist Church the Sunday evening of March 1st.

The most important event of the year was the annual Inter-High School Solo Contest, held March 18th, in which the club entered the following events: Soprano Solo, Mezza Soprano Solo, Alto Solo, a Triple Trio, and four girls for the octette.

THE Glee Club this year was one of the best ever produced at Northeast, due to the conscientious attitude of the boys and the careful instruction of Mr. Chaffee. The activities of the club were greatly widened to include a great many outside appearances. Among these were several church engagements, singing at the Union Station at Christmas time, and at the main show, Northeast Night.

Through intensive work, it has been possible to complete two years of voice culture in one year. The saving of a year's work thus, has been of great value to the members.

The club has afforded an opportunity for individual voice culture which has been of great benefit.

National Art Exhibit

FOR the exhibit this year twenty different persons sent in projects for competition. There were decorative designs and panels, portraits in water-color, batiks of different sorts, pen and ink sketches, commercial posters, small sculptures and block prints. In the latter two, Northeast is very proud to announce that Norma Erickson won a place with her fired clay sculpture, and Betty Payne won a place with her block print of a modernistic deer, surface pattern, in blue, and red-violet on silk. Last year, it will be remembered, Northeast won honorable mention for one entry; so we are very proud to have two art specimens in the exhibit this year.

After judgment has been passed upon the exhibit in Kansas City they will be sent to Philadelphia, where the superior specimens will be selected for the National Art Exhibition.

Finally, this latter choice collection, will be sent to various cities in the United States, and prizes will be awarded to the winning artists.

Nor'easter Staff

Row 3-Dexter, Shapiro, Coons, Whitesell, Chaffee, Anderson. Row 2-Teller, Peters, Glenn, Richardson, Daghy, Harvey. Row 1-Mr. White, Mr. Phillips, Busey, Winters, Miss Newitt, Miss Pile.

The staff again presents its annual publication for your approval.

It is through competition that the positions are procured. In the spring of the preceding year, there is a meeting of those who think that, perhaps they will try out for the staff, and general directions are given.

Plans, consisting of a "dummy" of the particular part the participant wishes to try out for, were turned in October 1st, and some time later announcements were made of those who had won their places.

Art editors, stenographer and bookkeeper are appointed positions. The advertising manager's position is determined by the student who procures the most advertisements for the annual.

We have, in this annual given you, in one form or another, the events of the year with the hope that your memories of "Thou Dear Northeast" will ever be happy ones.

THE first semester Courier staff endeavored to make its paper one that pleased its readers. The first and third page policy was to print more short items, vary the make-up plans, and use current news to a greater extent. The second page was slightly outstanding as a large majority of readers saw it. This may be attributed partly to the fact that the editorial column sought to eliminate the "preachy" type of article. A new standing feature was started taking the place of "Perceiving Percival," called the Sprinting Pen.

WITH the advent of the new staff and advisor, the editorial organization of the Courier was changed. A triple editor plan was introduced, which seems to have worked toward more efficient functioning of the various departments.

The second semester staff endeavored to introduce variety in types of stories and construction. The original policy of the paper remains constant, and the general appearance in respect to position of stories is unchanged.

Charles B. Reynolds Memorial Field

MARCH FIRST, Nineteen Hundred Thirty, the Northeast faculty approved a plan, proposed by one of its number, to name the athletic field in honor of Charles B. Reynolds, our first principal. The plan provided that a suitable, ornamental entrance should be erected in the most advantageous position to beautify this field and preserve the memory of him who first planned and put into execution the Northeast High School.

In pursuance of the step taken, Principal Arthur T. Chapin, appointed a committee as follows: Robert E. White, Chairman, Barry Fulton, G. W. Davis, R. E. Peters, Edward D. Phillips, L. A. Pinkney, Mabel Newitt, Eva L. Packard, Martha Rouse, and Nellie G. Stewart from the faculty, and Ralph Ellis, James North, Fred Rutledge, Wyeth Brewer, Ruth Spencer and Geraldine Griffith of the student body. The committee began at once to study the problem. The Board of Education approved the faculty plans, and displayed great interest in the matter. Realizing that the problem was a big one, the committee felt that ample time should be taken for study and planning.

The 1930-31 Committee from the faculty remained the same with one exception-Leo F. Roedl, taking Barry Fulton's place. The 1931 student members were: Charles Bleistein, George Uits, Tipton O'Neill, Marguerite Daghy, Norma Erickson and Catherine Busey. A small sub-committee consisting of Miss Newitt, Miss Stewart, Mr. Roedl, Mr. Peters, Mr. Chapin, Mr. White and Charles Bleistein, had several meetings with our Architect, Mr. Harry L. Wagner, a 1916 graduate of Northeast.

In a meeting held for that purpose, the large committee decided to place the Memorial entrance at the southwest corner of the athletic field. Other locations were considered, especially the northwest corner and north end, but there seemed to be several good reasons in favor of the southwest corner.

The funds for the Memorial entrance came from two principal sources. The Finance Committee appropriated a large amount out of the Northeast Night Fund, and the Senior classes of 1930 and 1931 contributed generously from their Senior Play fund. This was in accordance with the plans previously expressed that each Senior class for four or five years be given opportunity to contribute to the memorial and have its year engraved upon a suitable tablet. The entire structure is commodious, ornamental and fits into the situation nicely—blending with both the Junior High School and the Senior High School architecturally. It is in a position to be seen both from Independence Boulevard and Van Brunt. It adds greatly to the dignity and usefulness of the Athletic field and is a fitting memorial to our first Principal, Charles B. Reynolds, who so often said, "There's nothing too good for Northeast."

Mr. Reynolds was Principal of Garfield School from May 28, 1897, to February 1, 1912; Principal of Scarritt School, February 1, 1912, to March 18, 1913; Principal of Northeast High School, March 18, 1913 to June 27, 1921, and Principal Emeritus, June 27, 1921, until his death, January 13, 1926. He thus served the Northeast section of Kansas City nearly twenty-nine years. His last conspicuous service was rendered Northeast high when, largely through his influence, the Board of Education purchased the block east of the building for an athletic field. Northeast is honoring herself and her first principal by naming this field the Charles B. Reynolds Memorial Field.

Sixteen years ago Sixteen years ago Mr. E. D. Phillips conceived the idea of having his Senior English Literature classes test their skill in designing back plates ag an book plates as an artistic feature of books, and as liter-ary crests for book lovers.

So permanent and popular has this custom become, that Mr. Phillips invited the pupils in the de-sign classes of the art department to co-operate with the literature classes to enhance the beauty of this section of our annual.

The constant mo-

now have a special book plate for our school, and that it is being used to iden-tify the books be-longing to the Northeast High School.

The full-page print of 24 book plates is a copy of the large framed wall poster, which, by request of the National English Teachers' Convention was exhibited at the meeting of that convention at Kansas City in No-vember, 1929. It contains samples of book plate designs for the first 15 years of our school.

Too much credit cannot be paid Miss Mabel H. Newitt for the generous and invaluable aid that she gave these young artists in the preparation of their book plates.

One Hundred

Oratorical Contest

FOR the last six or seven years, the Kansas City Star has sponsored the oratorical contest. Each of the senior high schools choose a representative who speaks at Convention Hall in competition with the representatives of the other high schools. After this contest, representatives from the surrounding territory compete. The winners of this contest then compete at Washington, D. C., to determine the National champion who competes with others for the world championship.

This year, Northeast had four competitors. They were: Robert Conklin, Howard Adamson, Sheldon Jackson and Edwina Todd. Robert Conklin was the winner of this contest and represented Northeast in competition for the city championship held on the night of April 11th.

One Perfect Night

OLA ARENDS Alpha Literary Society

A billowy cloud To pillow my head. A vast sky of blue To blanket my bed. A wee, tiny star That twinkles and gleams Like a small magic lamp To guide all my dreams. A low gust of wind That sings lullabys To croon through the tree-tops, Caress my tired eyes.

Then, sleep—heavenly sleep, Like a vapor—a mist That eddies and swirls Then doesn't exist, Shall drift in around me, Like fog settle down Until in its folds I struggle and drown. And diffused over all Like the moon's silvery light, God's love shines, and makes this My one perfect night!

The Meadow

MARY VAUGHAN CROPPER

Alpha Literary Society

SPRING owns this meadow. All day long with the hum of bees and the twittering of birds does she proclaim it. The long stretch of green, dotted with pink and white clover, holds her sceptres each with a diamond dewdrop at the end of it.

The leaves are turning joyous faces toward the morning sun and the air is sweet with the freshness which comes only when June is in her blossoming glory. The spider webs are glinting in the sun where they have woven a silver canopy over a family of clover. The warm soft winds stir the tall grasses and the leaves of the single tree that the meadow boasts.

The tree is a willow leaning across the deep pool, where waters sleep the whole day through, as if striving to catch a reflection of herself, Narcissus-like. It is edged with little bamboo-like grasses that nod in the smiling sunlight to the little fish in the waters below. Insect life ripples its gleaming mirror surface. Fish flash their slender shapes. At one end the lily pads have spread fanwise their green.

In the center of the pool is a tiny island where sits a brown-legged boy guiding his paper boats with a long stick. The delicate tracery of the leaves and the clouds in the pool make of it a fairy world. The scent of the earth is in the air and the frogs sing in the evening.

Over yonder is a hill top, crowned by a grove of trees. The calm breeze from the meadow changes there to fierce gusts, tossing the branches wildly. Even so, birds are resting and nesting there. Robin shows his red breast in the massed boughs. With his mate he busies in many trips to a low hung nest where repose three sky blue eggs. Inquiring taps sound faintly where a red-headed neighbor has discovered dead wood.

The sloping green of the meadow stretches away to orchard, field and river. Corn fields are green with new life and the tender young leaves of their burden are waving continual signals to the clouds and the sky. The deepening haze of gold upon the wheat glimmers in the sunlight. The orchard's breath is the sweetness of a bride's chancel.

Delicate feathery spirals of plum blossom mingle with the heavier yellow-hearted apple blooms and those of the peach trees pink as the clouds of eventide. There the ground is glorious with wind caressed petals.

Near enough to catch the faint sweetness of the clover scent is the gliding majestic river. It shines and gleams in ever varying colors. Opalescent is its gleam. From afar the splash of oars is heard. The white sails of boats hurry here and there upon its placid surface. Occasionally voices or a merry trill of laughter is heard. The sail boats approach each other and move in close formation. Then they trail into a long streamer, ribbon-like in the purpling distance. A steamboat whistles and the churn of her wheels reaches the meadow faintly.

Summer clouds piled up mile high sail a sky of unbelievable blue. Mountains of snow, huge medieval castles, fantastic forests and ogre-fashioned faces emerge from the cumuli, re-form, fade away, an ever-moving, never-ending panorama.

There is meaning in the air. It is full of winged messengers. Shimmering and showy, they sail slanting or straight, slow or swift, soon to alight upon blossom or bough. Gorgeous scarlets, rich browns, vivid blues and intense purples are floating over the meadow. The rainbow hues seem to have broken away and fallen in little bits to the earth.

The patient bee goes down into the forest of clover. He is humming a happy song as he goes. To his nest under rough grasses, he buoyantly glides with his burden. The tiny life hidden in blossom, leaf and pool sounds low-pitched its orchestral notes for ears attuned to nature's harmony.

A huge bumble bee zooms above the clover village, plane-like. His black and gold coloring are piratical and his bold pre-emption of all the largest luscious blossoms reveals that nature knows how to color her own.

A thistle grows on a rock whose flower the bee and butterfly sip alike. By the roadside, over flaunting yellow roses, the yellow butterflies linger. They are impartial in their bold caresses.

God's gift, a glorious sunshine, envelops the world. Warm earth, whiffs of gragrant growth, the hum of insect life and the happy song of nesting birds are our seasonal assurance that the world is "knee deep in June."

The day dreams on. There is laughter in the leaves and dancing in the sunlight, but the wind is tired and quiet. He has left the orchard mourning and the clover blossoms all crimson and pink from his kisses mingled with those of the sun. A faint sweet odor clings to his own garments.

Down through this perfumed slope of June twists a little path, hesitating and half turning back, yet finally losing itself in the orchard beyond. Close by this path dwells a white clover blossom, so fair and white a thing that it is no wonder the crimson headed clover-man beside her leans with arms outstretched whenever the frolicsome wind blows her close to him.

The cool greenness of a four-leafed clover has kept her fair among her many tanned pink sisters. How they all envy the white clover blossom, when one day every blue bell in the meadow, field and orchard is set ringing to proclaim that happiness and the clover-man's love are hers.

Sun descends the sky and rosy fingers spread a color glory upon the far flung canvas of the horizon. The great Artist is painting in those delicate nuances never yet achieved by human hands. The day veiled in its sky hung after curtain has its glorious end.

Twilight approaches. It is the hush of the afterglow. The misty glorified evening sky is piled high with clouds of faint lavender, light yellow, pale pink and dark blue that deepen into purplish gray. The distant hills have a look of dim silver that may be taken for fields of tall grasses on a dewy morning.

Somewhere out in the shadows the lark is chanting a goodnight song, before retiring to his dewy rest. Vaguely, as in a dream, come thoughts of old romances. All over the meadow are little darting points of flame. They are tiny torch bearers, seeing all the belated blossoms safely home. The fireflies are lighting the dim streets of Clover-Town. Repose lies upon the meadow.

Down the little winding pathway strolls a figure in trailing robes of white, accompanied by a taller, darker form. The meadow has trembled in shadow, twilight and finally dark. The night wind is stirring. Mingled with starlight it touches their faces. There is a sudden exclamation. The white robed form bends over the white clover blossom.

"A four-leafed clover! That little blossom helped me to find it," murmurs a low voice.

Upon a slender shaft of purple gleams the evening star, queen of all others that dimple the vast silent dome above the meadow.

Whitewashed Fences

ALYCE HAMILTON

Theta Literary Society

T was a fresh Saturday morning in early May, but Bill ate breakfast slowly. The eastern sky was a cloudless sea of brisk blue; the last rosy tints of dawn had vanished, and the conquering sun stirred the waking world to a busy day. The breeze from the garden carried the pleasant smell of green, growing things into the diningroom, but Bill lingered over his oatmeal. The other members of the Parks family regarded his unusual inertia with surprising complacency. George, alone, surveyed his brother in idle curiosity. His vague wonderment as to what ingenious scheme was being camouflaged by Bill's elaborate bored manner was punctuated with economic interest. There had been times when George had served as conspirator in Bill's plots to better his own financial state, but Saturday morning in spring presented—indeed, demanded—a number of puerile engagements, and he departed in haste.

At length having finished the prolonged meal, Bill despondently sought the back steps. From this vantage point, he commanded full, if disinterested, view of George engrossed in a game of marbles. He was dislodged from this perch by the dripping ascension of the iceman to the back porch. With studied languor, he made his way to the sunroom.

A mild old lady of doubtful years was half-hidden behind the sheets of the morning newspaper.

"Good morning, Grandmother."

"Yes, it is, Bill."

Funny, he reflected, that she never called him William . . . most older people did. Bill felt a sudden wave of affection for the person in the wicker chair. With unwonted generosity he took her into his confidence.

"Dad said I can't go to camp."

"A flat refusal?"

Grandmother seldom used complete sentences.

"Might as well have been," Bill decided, morosely.

She folded her paper with characteristic niceness of precision and waited for him to continue.

"The trip will cost about seventy-five dollars," he explained. "Dad said if I could earn twenty-five by working in the bookstore he would supply the rest. He said he'd give me a dollar for every sale I could make by my own effort."

Grandmother was non-committal.

"Gee," Bill moaned after a moment, "I don't know anyone to sell a book to . . . unless it would be some of the kids at school and what would they want with books when vacation's nearly here?"

Grandmother smiled at his ungrammatical outburst.

"Just it," she murmured.

"What's just it?" he demanded. Bill hated being obtuse.

"Make them want books."

Bill grinned weakly. Maybe it was true that old people got childish after a time, but his grandmother had been so sensible . . . He shook his head mournfully.

"Have you ever read 'Tom Sawyer?' " she asked.

Bill nodded. This was terrible.

"Then re-read it," she commanded. "Study the chapter on how Tom white-washed the fence and do some white-washing of your own." Bill gazed at her a bit sadly as he left the room. Perhaps he really should tell his mother . . . but that seemed sort of like betrayal . . . somehow.

That Bill Parks had something "great" behind his Latin book was the substance of the whispers that circulated the class, early Monday morning. It developed that the "something" was a pocket Facts book, and the whispers ceased, replaced by disgusted silence. When the second period ensued and Bill foresook the ancient art of paper-wad shooting that blossomed during the reign of a substitute teacher in the Medieval History class, wonderment arose. With hidden glee he buried his freckled visage in the Facts book.

The wonderment assumed enormous proportions when at lunch Bill propped the minute volume of learning against his glass of milk and devoured its contents while his teeth masticated the remnants of a cheese sandwich.

A rightfully indignant companion addressed him.

"Aw, cut it out, Bill. What's the game?"

Tom Burton's curiosity conquered his natural reserve.

"Game . . . what game?" Bill frowned at his interruption.

"Tryin' to make us believe you're interested in that stuff. Since when did you get intellectual?"

"Yeh," chimed in the others informally.

Bill favored them with a pitying glance.

"Say, fellows, this is real stuff. I can't let you in on it or I would. I'm sorry. Thus dismissing them, he returned to his reading.

By the end of the regular hours that day, he had received twelve written queries about the book. He pocketed them all solemnly.

His popularity increased with amazing rapidity.

On Tuesday, fellow classmates plied him with questions and received the reluctantly given information that the book told all about Napoleon's private life. Bill wondered a bit afterward about that word "all." Wednesday brought a hurried conference with his conscience and resulted in his divulgence of the fact that parlor tricks were expalined within the pages. On Thursday, frenzied questioners put him through a third degree, and he confessed that the secret of popularity was hidden between the book's drab covers. He assured himself that it was very well hidden.

The weekly meeting of the mystic order of the S. R. S. was held Friday night. For just what the initials stood, none of the members could ever quite remember —if indeed they had sometime known—but not one of them forgot that they were bound together by a secret and eternal pledge.

Bill, his brothers assured him, by virtue of this pledge was legally forced to procure for them, if possible, the desired book, and Bill, loyal member that he was, agreed after some deliberation to do his part. Five minutes of more or less thoughtful silence produced the plan of action. Each club member was charged to appear separately at the book store the following morning and present his desire to buy a book. The members were each cautioned to present a dollar as well as the desire for the book. Bill promised to issue the coveted tomes as long as the limited supply lasted.

On arrival at his place of business, Mr. Parks found a prospective buyer of the younger generation anticipatorily surveying the door. Scarcely had that individual departed with his pocket volume safely tucked under a muscular arm when another seeker of the intellectual light entered the shop. There was a steady stream of youthful customers during the day. To the store-owner's puzzlement and to his expense, the boys were all buying from Bill a book that had been kept without much demand in stock for nearly two years. Bill diplomatically avoided explanation.

At dinner he took his place with placid amiability.

"Well, I'm goin' to camp next month," he announced, with a certain malicious joy at George's worried misbelief.

His sister questioned him.

"How did you ever earn the money, Bill?"

"I've been white-washing fences," he answered.

George, looking up in blissful ignorance from his creamed carrots, snorted, but Grandmother smiled.

Baron Von Steuben

THORSELL PRATT

School-at-Large

N the great struggle for American Independence many names have been enshrined in the Hall of Fame, and we instinctively call to mind the names of such men as Washington, Adams, Franklin, La Fayette and others, but there are many men whose valor, genius and achievements did much in helping the thirteen colonies to gain their independence, who are little known to the average citizen of today.

One of the outstanding characters and geniuses to which I wish to call your attention, was a foreigner at the breaking out of the Revolution, but whose zeal for liberty and a righteous cause, was attracted to the Colonists struggling for independence, who enlisted his service and his all—I refer to General Baron von Steuben.

When a very young boy Steuben displayed a grat love for the alluring art of war. So great was his love that his military education was personally supervised by Fredrick the Great, an honor and recommendation, in the military sense, that could not be equaled. He spent twenty years of hard labor and toil in the saddle until he was acclaimed as one of the foremost generals in all Europe.

Steuben, a man of very stable, military character, was the reformer of the American Army. The army at the time of his arrival in America being at its most delapidated stage. He could not have come at a more opportune time to aid Washington, who was then suffering greatly with his troops at Valley Forge, nor could he have displayed a more noble character in the hardships and sacrifices he underwent during those long and bitter years of strife. Something entirely new and different from the luxurious conditions to which he was accustomed in Germany.

Recognizing his power and ability as an army officer and reformer Washington immediately appointed Steuben as Inspector General, a position which he filled with honor, distinction and efficiency until the end of the most important struggle. A disciplinarian was what the American Army needed most above all things. It needed a man to transform a wretched poverty stricken mass of farmers into a smooth working military machine. It needed a man who possessed military genius and winning personality to place it in a position to meet a most efficient army of one of the great powers of Europe. It needed a man who was willing and able to undergo trying conditions that, were by all indications not unforeseen. General Steuben possessed these characteristics and administered them to the best of his ability, all that could be done or given by any man regardless of his inheritance or acquirements.

The reformer, as he might well be called, did not hesitate or acquirements. The reformer, as he might well be called, did not hesitate in performing the difficult task that was assigned him, nor did he ask any help. He proceeded, in his indefinable way, the building of a new army. He wrote a manual of arms, the first ever to be used in the American Army, and by the strick enforcement of this manual succeeded in establishing an efficient military regime. While he strengthened the actual fighting power of the army he also remodeled the internal power, or departments of the army, placing responsibility on the superior officers, and introducing systems of economy and efficiency into its policies.

On the battle field his actions are not to be forgotten. Time after time he turned defeat into decisive victory by displaying his most valuable military tactics. He was the hero of the day at Stoney Point, at West Point, in Virginia, and he was the man who claimed the honor of receiving Cornwallis's offer to surrender.

After the war was over and America had succeeded in winning its independence, he returned to New York to live as a private citizen, renouncing his status as a Prussian subject, desiring to remain in his adopted country. However, as in some instances, his military services were soon forgotten by the country he had so nobly served and he was practically without means, when in 1790, seven years after the close of the war, Congress voted him a pension on which he was able to live the rest of his days in comfort. He retired to his farm, a gift of the state of New York, where he died in the winter of 1794.

Thus lived and died the trusted friend and advisor of Washington. The discipliarian and reformer of the Colonial army; the Engineer and Strategist; the builder of West Point; the hero and soldier of many a battlefield; the defender of Liberty and a righteous cause; the man, the hero, and the soldier—Baron von Steuben.

THE success of our athletic teams is due largely to the constant efforts of our coaching staff. Mr. Reeves Peters is in charge of basketball and track at Northeast and his teams are noted for their sportsmanship and ability to win consistently.

Mr. M. E. Davis is football coach. Besides guiding the Viking gridsters, he very ably assists in the training of other purple athletic teams.

Mr. Paul Pickens is financial manager. It is his duty to see that our sporting activities run on a paying basis throughout the year.

Charles Bleistein was the student athletic manager this year. It was his duty to check the equipment in and out and also to assist the coaches. He proved himself very capable of the position at all times.

CENTRAL	.33

THE football season of 1930 was a successful one in many ways. Although the Viking team was not a champion, measured in games won and lost, the development and improvement of the squad was notably apparent the latter part of the season.

Captain Lynch, Wilfong and Raccagno were the only veterans around which a new team had to be molded. Coach M. E. Davis developed this group of young, inexperienced men into a team that could always be depended upon to give a good account of itself. This year's team improved with each game and at the end of the season the men were blocking, tackling and handling the ball with sureness and skill.

It bids fair to say that next year the Northeast grid machine will be one that will bear watching. Many of this season's lettermen will be eligible for play and a number of the second-string men are expected to furnish power.

One Hundred Fifteen

VIRGIL proved to be a worthy captain, capable of handling the team with smart generalship. His small size was apparently no handicap to his playing qualities, for he could always be depended on for a few yards. He will be remembered at Northeast for his smilling countenance and desire to win.

Pete was never known to miss a tackle and he was always good for a gain through the line. His all-around work in the Southwest and Manual games led him to be captain-elect. Great things are expected of him next year.

"Don" was known for his ability to catch short passes. He could always carry the ball for a gain.

"Butch" played a steady game at full back. His ability to block led a team-mate through a hole many times. He could hit the line with plenty of speed and power and was a valuable cog in the Viking machine.

"Kenny" was the first one down the field on a punt and was a good tackler. He continually broke up runs around his end and spilled the ball carrier for a loss.

"Jiggs" did such fine work at tackle that he was chosen on the all-star team. He could block his man out of the play and also tackle with great accuracy and ferocity. This was his first and last year of football.

"Mac" although very small for a guard, played that position in an excellent manner. He said but very little, but could always be depended upon to deliver the goods.

"Art" is well built and looks the part of a tackle. He did his best work in blocking, although he was a constant threat defensively.

Tony proved to be a reliable center. His defensive work in the Central game showed his mettle. He worked hard throughout the season and put his heart into his play.

Buford could play either the line or backfield, but performed better in the former. He was very consistent and could block and tackle in a really thorough manner.

Gaylord played a tackle position in a conclusive way. His weight seemed to bother opposing teams, who couldn't seem to get by him. He could also drop back and kick when it was necessary to do so.

Ivan played the game hard and with all of his heart. He used his weight to good advantage. Many times he would stop an opposing ball carrier in his tracks.

Harry saw considerable action as a center. His ability to spiral the ball to the backfield caused favorable comment. This is his last year here and he will be missed by the many followers of the sport.

"Chuck" turned out to be a real "find." He could toss or receive passes with tacklers at his heels. He should be a real help to the team next year.

"Nip" was the smallest man on the team but his fighting spirit and blocking ability made up for whatever he lacked in weight.

Virgil tackled the "body and soul." He was very adept at catching passes and his defensive play at times was sensational. This is his last year here and Northeast will be losing a star athlete and a true sportsman.

THE 1931 Northeast basketball team was undoubtedly one of the best to ever represent the school. Coach Peters molded an inexperienced group of boys together and produced a fast quintet that won the Interscholastic League championship. By winning the elimination tournament held in Convention Hall, the team went to Columbia as one of the Kansas City entrants in the state tournament held there annually. Here the team was eliminated in the second round by Kirksville, and this defeat was followed by another loss to Warrenton, thus ending a very colorful and successful season.

T bids fair to say that Northeast will be well represented with its track team this year. Although there are but five letter men back, Coach Peters is confident that the purple tracksters will finish high up in the final standings.

Northeast opened the outdoor season with a victory over East, 80 to 11. As the annual goes to press the Vikings are about to encounter Central.

There are many track athletes of exceptional ability at Northeast this year. Captain George Uits holds both city and state records in the 120-yard high hurdles. He is a sure point winner in every meet.

Tom Patton is an experienced dash man. Max Tonkin, Floyd Mc-Sparren, N. Phelps, F. Holm and L. Bodenhamer are the mainstays in the 440 and 880 yard dashes.

John Wilfong, Virgil Young, and E. Cox represent Northeast in the pole vault.

Billy Lynn, George Marvin and John Rumsby push the shot for the purple. Elmer Shobe runs the 100 and 220 yard dashes. He is also an excellent broad jumper. Car Ditto is another hurdler of great merit.

Kenneth Davis, L. Addington and Smith, are high jumpers of proven ability. The student body is confident that the 1931 Viking track team will successfully defend both city and state championship titles.

TENNIS TEAM

After the tournament in which thirtysix boys participated, six were chosen to compose the tennis team and represent Northeast in the Inter-scholastic tennis meet held at the Rockhill tennis club. The boys who advanced far into the tournament were Edwin Clinard, Capt. Wallace Nobles, Jack Gilbert, Eugene Ford, John Gay and Walter Powell.

In the Inter-scholastic meet, all Northeast entries passed the first round except Clinard, who fell to the Paseo en-try. The Indians were too strong in the back court and emerged as winners. The same type of defeat also came to the Gay-Powell team who were defeated by Paseo, after three sets. Wallace Nobles gained second round and defeated Central's representative. In the quarter-finals, Nobles was de-feated by the Southwest captain. After this defeat all the Northeast net mor were eliminated from the tournament. However, Northeast ranked third to Westport and Southwest which ranked third to Westport and Southwest which ranked first and second respectively. Matches were played between various high schools in the spring.

GOLF TEAM

The Northeast golf team has been very successful in winning matches this year. The Manual golfers fell victim to the Viking team, 18 to 0. Central was also defeated by Northeast, 14 to 1. Six boys compose the golf squad. Emerson Prior, captain, and Noble Worden are constant winners, shooting scores of 79 and 80 consistently. Homer Stump and John Tulipano are also golfers of great merit. Bill Redpath and Clarence Metcalf are able substitutes.

Inter-scholastic golf competition is a comparatively new plan. There has been much interest taken in the matches and it is believed that many people have become interested in the sport by watching the league matches.

THE "N" Club is composed of boys who have won a letter in a sport during the school year. This organization has no regular meetings or social activities. It is indeed an honor to wear this insignia.

A football or basketball man must play a majority of the quarters during the season.

Track men must place first, or second to a Northeast man, in a dual meet, or place in the finals of the indoor, city or state meet.

Those boys aspiring to tennis letters must advance to the semi-finals in the inter-school tournament held annually.

The purpose of the club is to uphold the high standard of athletics in the schools, raise the scholarship of the athletes, and to encourage co-operation among the men.

The club was organized in 1921. Mr. Reeves Peters is the advisor.

Our cheerleaders have always been capable of arousing "pep" and spirit among the rooters. Especially is this true of this year's group. Their constant efforts have added to the morale of our teams many times during the season. Our cheerleaders deserve recognition for the part they played in the success of our athletics teams. VIKING VIBRATORS

The Viking Vibrators were organized in 1930 to take the place of the Pep Club. The members stimulate pep and enthusiasm in the entire student body at all local and inter-scholastic games and contests. The Vibrators have succeeded in instilling great enthusiasm into those attending the scholastic events, and in encouraging those taking part to greater effort. Mr. Sears is the advisor.

A GAIN we come to the close of the school year and it is with the greatest satisfaction that the Girls' Physical Education Department may look back upon the events which have taken place. This is due largely to the efforts of Miss Stewart and Miss Bland.

Miss Stewart had charge of the junior and senior classes, the dancing activities and the Olympic Club. Miss Bland had charge of the sophomores, the team tryouts, and all swimming activities.

The student managers also deserve credit for the time and work they have devoted to their particular sport. Each manager did her best to develop good teams and to promote good sportsmanship among the girls.

FIELD HOCKEY—an outdoor sport—comes first in the series of inter-class competition.

An unusual interest was shown in the sport this year. Over ninety sophomores, and an equally encouraging number of juniors reported for the practice and try-outs. Twenty-two members constitute a squad; eleven on a team. Each girl who is selected for the team is required to play two full games in order to receive her ten athletic points. The juniors were the undefeated champions for this year. Splendid team work and good sportsmanship were shown by each girl.

Miss Bland, girls' physical education instructor, was in charge of this sport.

[OLLEYBALL is one of the most interesting sports of the year and is well liked by all of the girls. Fifteen girls played on a team instead of the regular eleven so that more girls could receive their points. The games began on January 7th and ended on January 23rd.

About thirty members from each class were chosen to represent their groups in the competition.

The seniors were the undefeated champions. Much enthusiasm was shown by the girls this year and judging from the competition this season, next year's games will be closely contested.

Sixty-five girls received five athletic points for this sport.

Basketball season started February 5th with a burst of enthusiasm.

After hard battling and much clashing the seniors arose victorious.

DANCING also furnishes a most interesting part of the girls work. It develops poise and grace and the girls derive much benefit from it. Each year the dancing classes, under the direction of Miss Stewart, have furnished several dances for the Northeast Night program. Three dances were given this year and the colorful costumes added much to their credit in making them a success.

The girls are taught the dances in their class periods and then Miss Stewart selects the best pupils to participate in them.

For the past three years the girls have taken part in the R. O. T. C. Circus, but, due to an accident, Miss Stewart was unable to prepare the girls for it this year.

The girls are always enthusiastic about the dances and work hard and earnestly to participate in them.

THE Northeast Olympic Club is an organization of girls from the gym classes. The object of this club is to promote the spirit of fair play and good, clean sportsmanship among the girls. This club was organized in 1919-1920 under the supervision of Miss Stewart, who is still the faithful advisor.

The girls form teams during the different seasons and play one another. This provides excellent entertainment as all the girls are interested in athletics.

The following point system is used: Hockey, 10; Volleyball, 5; Basketball, 10; Baseball, 5; Junior and Senior Gym, 5; Dancing, 5; Life Saving, 10, and State Letter, 10.

THE Northeast Seal Club was organized in 1927. The object of the club is to promote good health and physical development through swimming. At each meeting the girls are taught more about swimming. The colors are blue and white and the emblem, a seal. Miss Bland is the new advisor.

The Seals always put on a novel side show for Northeast Night.

One of the big aims of the girls is to pass the American Red Cross Life Saving test.

One Hundred Thirty-two

Life Savers

TO pass the American Red Cross Life Saving test is the one big aim of the girls in the swimming classes. Members of the Seals are encouraged to pass the A. R. C. Life Saving tests. Instructions are given in their regular meetings. They, in turn, help the non-members.

There are two tests—the junior and senior. The requirements for the Junior Life Saving test are: Age, 12 years and up, pass swimmers test, and have at least eight hours preparation and practice. The requirements for the Senior Life Saving test are: Age, 17 years, or 16 years and a senior, and eight hours or more of instruction.

About 25 girls are expected to pass the tests by the end of the year.

State Letter

THE girls in the gym classes have a chance to win not only an N, but also the state letter M.

In order to win this, one must pass several examinations. This has given the girls a real motive to have physical examinations, to overcome physical defects, to have their teeth attended to, to secure good posture, to maintain high scholarship, to develop a sense of service, sportsmanship and loyalty.

This letter means much to the girls as it is awarded to students in different high schools throughout the state of Missouri.

About fifty girls are expected to pass these examinations.

One Hundred Thirty-three

Tennis

A FTER all the major sports are completed, the girls of the gym. department still have one thing to look forward to, Tennis, which is one of the most healthful and invigorating sports in which one can participate. Much interest is shown in this recreation and many of the girls enter into the competition. The games are played on nearby courts during the last few weeks of school. Girls who wish to enter the tournament hand in their names when the pairings and drawings are made. Clean sportsmanship and fair play are always well displayed on the court.

Baseball

THE athletic season has been brought to a close with baseball. This is one of the favorite sports in the Girls' Athletic Department and keen competition between the three classes, sophomores, juniors, and seniors, has been displayed, because of the fact that they have all been striving for the championship in sport.

Each year large and small "N's" are awarded to the girls who earn recognition for their athletic ability. The small "N" is presented to those who obtain seventy-five points by participating in the several sports conducted by the athletic directors, Miss Stewart and Miss Bland, and the large "N" is given the girls earning one hundred points. By playing two games in this inter-class tournament each girl may win ten points toward the coveted "N."

This year the games were played after school on the athletic field.

SPONSOR OFFICERS

Athaliene Campbell was honored by the girls of the senior class and the "R. O. T. C." Battalion by receiving the election of sponsor-major of the "R. O. T. C." Patty Glenn and Ola Arends received the rank of sponsor-captains, while Frances Gindhart and Evelyn Eder were elected sponsor-lieutenants. These officers received these positions because of their scholastic ability and popularity.

OFFICERS STAFF

The officers staff is the organization of officers which is really the student headquarters of the "R. O. T. C." Battalion. The officers of this club supervise the other boys in their various works. They take care of the office work, supplies and plan the work of the different companies. The highest standard of personnel is set by these officers, and altogether, the whole section is dependent on them for the manner in which all the business affairs of the "R. O. T. C." Battalion are executed.

Its company commander, Captain Sherman is a lineal descendant of General Sherman, famous commander of Civil War fame, and Lieut. Marvin was the only Northeast representative on the all-star Kansas City Football Squad. Company A boasts of a record of accomplishment in the "R. O. T. Man's voice: You dirty thing. Goodbye. . .

Daughter (having just received a new mink coat from father): What I don't see is how a wonderful fur can come from such a low, sneaking beast.

Father: I don't ask for thanks dear, but I do insist on respect.

Fat Lady (bathing): Here, let go of my leg!

Near-sighted Gent: Oh, excuse me. I thought I had hold of the pier.

Teacher (taking up examination paper): Why all the quotation marks all over this paper?

Freeman Alford: Courtesy to the man on my right, teacher.

Miss Fate: How many times have I told you to come to the library on time? John Wilfong: Sorry, I thought you were keeping score.

Homer Stump (supping soup loudly in lunchroom as neighbor looks around): Well, whatcha lookin' at?

Lee Dora Bagby: Sorry, I thought you had fallen in.

1st Stud: John Gay smashed his car

yesterday and was taken to jail. 2nd Stud: What was he charged for? 1st Stud: For driving under the influence of women.

Miss Weaver: What happened to Burr

after he killed Hamilton? Billy Morris (sleepily as usual): He fled in several directions. .

Mr. Harmon: Your themes should be written with such a vocabulary that the most ignorant person can understand them.

Wilson Sherman: What part is it you don't understand?

Mr. White: What type of circle have I drawn here?

Pauline Greene: A round circle. . . .

Mr. Pinkney: James, please define "space."

James Blake: I can't state it, but I have it in my head.

Jack Gilbert: Quick, Doctor, do something! I was playing a mouth organ and swallowed it.

Doctor: 'Be calm, Jack, and be thankful you weren't playing a piano.

Mother: Your face is clean but how did you get your hands so dirty? Clyde Hicks: Washin' my face. . . .

Now, she asked: Is there any man in the audience who would let his girl be slandered and say nothing? A meek man rose to his feet.

The lecturer glared at him: Do you mean to say you would let a girl be slandered and say nothing? Oh, I'm sorry, he apologized, I thought you said slaughtered.

. Virgil Young: What is excelsior? Brite Stude: Long sawdust.

Second Farmer: I know. He came over to call on my daughter last night. . .

Mother: Robert, you are going to be punished. You can just go to bed without your supper.

Robert C .: Mother, what about that medicine I've got to take after meals?

Andrew Porter: Does a college education pay?

Don Bradley: Of course it pays. Doesn't the football star always get the girl?

Frances Teller: Has the editor gotten my jokes yet? Abe Shapiro: No, but she is trying hard.

Jack Bowman confronted with the question on a test: Give three proofs that the earth is round.

(Found on Jack's paper): My book said so, the teacher said so, and a man told me so.

Distracted senior to soph: I'll pay you one hundred dollars for taking care of my worries for me. Soph: And where will you get the hundred?

Senior: That is your first worry. .

James Tanner: My tooth aches. Jimmy Flack: Put a hot water bottle on it.

J. Tanner: Don't be silly, I can't get a hot water bottle in my mouth. J. Flack: Oh, I don't know.

The Class Will

BEING of sound mind, memory, and understanding, we, the senior class of Northeast High School, county of Jackson, city of Kansas City, state of Missouri, do make and publish this last will and testament to determine the distribution of following articles to the remaining students of said school.

To the sophomores we leave all loud ties, socks, handkerchiefs, and, incidentally, girls.

To those fortunate or unfortunate enough (depending on the club or society to which they belong) to make above named organizations, we leave all disputes, questions and responsible positions.

To the following Juniors we gratefully leave the alcove:

Kathaleen Gebaur Kenneth Atwell La Vanche Bowman Herbert Bodyston Naomi Lee Smith Kenneth Swain Billy Tate Bryant Meehan Marian White Lucille Englebert Warren Slagle Grace Workman French White

All others are to be welcomed by these-even sophomores.

To industrious studes we gratefully leave all books which we hope all will appreciate, as these battered and worn books have served us through many days of agitation (they were used mostly during January 5th to 10th and May 25th to 31st).

To the little student who is trying to get along-and as a personal favor-Colonel Clair wants to leave his "Way with women."

To Evelyn Price and Thela Box we leave the mixers and may they inspire all boys to attend—and incidentally mix—also through these two inspirations may the school produce bigger and better orchestras.

To the school we leave all trophies that have been so courageously won.

All other articles that have not heretofore have disposed of, we leave, with due respect to Mr. Chapin for future distribution.

In witness whereof we, the senior class, do sign and seal this last will and testament this day of May, nineteen hundred and thirty-one.

Acknowledgments

THE Nor'easter Staff of Northeast High School takes this opportunity to acknowledge the fine services offered by those who have had the interest of the Annual at heart. We are indeed grateful to the Lewis Printing Company and the Burger-Baird Engraving Company for their valuable suggestions in regard to the publication of the Nor'easter. We wish to thank the Haines Studio for their fine work in the taking of individual, group and faculty pictures. We are deeply indebted to the stage crew for their co-operative work in the taking of group pictures; the faculty and office staff for their beneficial advice; the Art and English departments for the fine material which they submitted, and the student body for their enthusiastic support of Annual sales. We wish to thank each of the advertisers for their loyal support. To all these and to any others who in any way contributed to the success of the 1931 Nor'easter we extend our thanks.

Only through the valuable assistance of those mentioned have we been able to place the 1931 Nor'easter in your hands.

September Events

"Hi." "Say, lay off the Sunburn." "Where is 214?"

"Outa the way, Sophie."

Yes, the memorable first of school. Every one is full of enthusiasm as he goes swinging down the hall into the usual routine of "Ye Old School." A good spirited football game was played on our field, but despite the opportunity the courageous Vikings were defeated. A pep assembly put everyone in the spirit of "Thou dear Northeast," and among the wild yelling, the Cheerleaders were chosen to lead the wanton yellers. They were Tipton O'Neil, Freeman Alfred, Ralph Jones and Warren Slagle.

Clubs once more go into conference bringing back memories of previous years. And as the opening month closes the Indians of Southwest defeat the Vikings in a hard fought football game.

November Events

Our trusty Viking football team has been defeated in the games of this month. But we all had a two days' vacation because of the Missouri State teachers, which of course cheered us all up. The Inter-Society Dance was held November 28th. All society belles and social lions mingled and had one hilarious time.

December Events

This month opens dramatically as the Christmas Play is put on. It was splendidly done and every one liked it—that was the general opinion.

The basketball season opens favorably with a victorious game with Wyandotte. The victory was celebrated with an allschool mixer. Everyone turned out it seemed and a general good time was had by all attending.

The alumni defeated the victorious Vikings in a basketball game. But then dear Vikings don't lose faith, they are supposed to be better than we, considering the fact that they have graduated. The month ends gloriously as school lets out for the Xmas holidays. Murray Ellsworth Flower Shop

January Events

"Hello there." "Sayaaa look what old Santa brought me."

January opens at "Thou dear Northeast" with a studious looking gang hard at work testing their mental ability in the final exams.

A basketball game at Convention hall shows Northeast the victors. My what an outlook for the season! Two games out of three!

February Events

Ah, February—the month when little notes are distributed among students with, "To My Valentine" and so forth on them. A month of explanations and identifications. Also a month of all great men—Washington, Lincoln and George Erickson (we question the last).

A large assembly in which some of our notables are presented to the public. Namely the Major, Stanley DuBois and Sponsor Major, Miss Athaliene Campbell.

We again have a victorious game at Convention hall. It looks like a good trip, for the Viking ship. Sophies sign up to offer their humble selves to the societies for comment.

And above all in the month, the class of 1931 chooses its President, Mr. Robert Conklin. Welcome, Captain, may you head this ship to the right port.

One Hundred Sixty-five

March Events

The Student Council that will serve the remainder of this year has chosen their leader. Stanley Sharratt—these blond boys will lead—we can't say they are insufficient even though they are light-headed.

The annual staff decides to show the student body what they have been laboring over all year so they put on the skit "A Court Scene." It brings a big sale of annuals during the following week. We wonder if they want the annual or the cake.

The city championship basketball team bore the name of "Northeast" as they went gloriously to Columbia. Even though we did get defeated there, the experience was grand for the team. "To Your Door Every Day"
